

CHINA’S COVID-19 COVER-UP PLAYBOOK

In late 2019, a novel coronavirus, commonly referred to as COVID-19, began significant human-to-human transmission. COVID-19 reportedly originated in Wuhan, China, although the precise nature of its origin is still under review.¹

As the virus spread beyond its borders, the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) suppressed crucial information necessary to curb worldwide transmission. As of August 19, 2020, the virus has spread to nearly every country and resulted in more than 22,152,000 confirmed cases and at least 781,200 deaths.²

The House Foreign Affairs Committee (HFAC) Republicans released an interim report examining the CCP’s COVID-19 cover-up on June 12, 2020. The report concluded “...it is clear CCP health officials and senior leadership had the information required, at a date early enough, to reduce China’s COVID-19 cases by at least 86% compared to the estimated caseload at the end of February.”³

The CCP’s COVID-19 cover-up very closely echoes the strategy undertaken 17 years ago during the 2003 SARS outbreak. SARS “spread to 28 countries outside of [China], resulting in more than 8,000 cases and 774 known deaths.”⁴ HFAC Republicans identified eight behaviors that the CCP engaged in to conceal the SARS and COVID-19 pandemics, as shown in the table below:

CCP Actions	SARS	COVID-19
Waited to inform the WHO?	✓	✓
Subsequently hid information from the WHO?	✓	✓
Hid their knowledge of the severity of the outbreak?	✓	✓
Disrupted press from reporting?	✓	✓
Response kept secret until after the Spring Festival travel season began?	✓	✓
Limited access of outside experts to epicenter of the outbreak?	✓	✓
Claimed the virus was under control?	✓	✓
Underreported number of cases?	✓	✓

Furthermore, HFAC Republicans found that the CCP’s COVID-19 behaviors “repeatedly, and intentionally, violated the 2005 International Health Regulations (IHR) that were put in place after Beijing’s failed response to SARS.”⁶ Despite clear violations of international law and regulations referenced in the report, the World Health Organization (WHO) continues to defend the CCP’s handling of COVID-19.

The CCP has a long history of concealing serious information to the detriment of every other country. Until they are held to the standards created because of their past cover-ups, they are destined to continue this deception.
